Research

Research is an integral part of the activities in the Division of Neonatal-Perinatal Medicine. All fellows participate actively in research. The division maintains the Lilling Family Neonatal Research Lab at the Feinstein Institute for Medical Research, which supports an active laboratory based research program coordinated by specialized research scientists.
ASSESSMENT OF SCHOLARLY ACTIVITIES 2014-2015

PUBLICATIONS

9. Schanler RJ also is the creator and editor of 13 chapters in Pediatric Up-To-Date which are reviewed quarterly:
   a. Pathology and pathogenesis of necrotizing enterocolitis in newborns.
   b. Clinical features and treatment of necrotizing enterocolitis in newborns.
   c. Management of necrotizing enterocolitis in newborns.
   d. Enteral nutrition in the premature infant, Parts 1 and 2.
   e. Parenteral nutrition in premature infants, Parts I and II.
   f. Nutritional composition of human milk and preterm formula for the premature infant.
   g. Human milk feeding and fortification of human milk for premature infants.
   h. Breastfeeding in the perinatal period, Parts I and II
   i. Nutritional composition of human milk for full-term infants.
   j. Physiology of lactation
   l. Patient information: Common breastfeeding problems.
   m. Patient information: Breastfeeding-I and II

PRESENTATIONS

5. Boyar V. Use of a portable, single-use negative pressure wound therapy device and medical grade honey in critically ill neonatal patients with dehisced abdominal wounds. Symposium on Advanced Wound Care, Las Vegas, NV. October 2014.